

We have been busy in the new year, researching the effects of foreclosures on school mobility of children, examining the relationship between the LIHTC and racial segregation, and analyzing the causes and impact of neighborhood economic change. We released our latest Quarterly Housing Update, and celebrated the Furman Center's 15th Anniversary with our report, '15 Years of Research, Analysis and Insight'.

We hope this newsletter inspires feedback and new ideas and look forward to hearing back from you about our research.

In the News

More Landlords Not Paying Up

Wall Street Journal,
April 13, 2011

Referenced State of New York City's Housing and

Latest News and Events

Furman Center Releases the 2010 State of New York City's Housing and Neighborhoods Report

April 12, 2011: The Furman Center issued the 9th edition of its State of New York City's Housing and Neighborhoods. In this annual report, the Furman Center compiles statistics on housing, demographics and quality of life indicators in the City, its five boroughs and 59 community districts. This year we examined the impact of foreclosures on New York City's multi-family rental stock, analyzed where New Yorkers work and how they commute, and highlighted the Furman Center's latest research on public and subsidized rental housing. Read the press release here.

IAHP Roundtable Attracts National Housing Finance Experts

February 4, 2011: The Furman Center's Institute for Affordable Housing Policy hosted an invitation-only roundtable, "Navigating Uncertain Waters: Mortgage Lending in the Wake of the Great Recession."

The event convened leaders from the government, academic, non-profit and private sectors to address mortgage credit need and availability in the current uncertain marketplace. The roundtable included robust conversations on how to measure borrower creditworthiness, the importance of accurate collateral valuation, and the appropriate role of government in the

Neighborhoods 2010

The 10 Most Segregated Urban Areas in America

Salon, March 29, 2011

Interview with Faculty

Co-Director Ingrid Gould Ellen

Home Prices Fall, Foreclosures Ease

Wall Street Journal,

February 26, 2011

Referenced New York City Quarterly Housing Update: 2010, 4th Quarter

Federal Foreclosure Funds Trickling into Neighborhoods

Chicago Tribune, January 16, 2011

Referenced Neighborhood Effects of Concentrated Mortgage Foreclosures

About the Furman Center

Since its founding in 1995, the Furman Center for Real Estate and Urban Policy has become a leading academic research center devoted to the public policy aspects of land use, real estate development and housing.

future mortgage market. Keynote speaker Michael Barr discussed a framework for a reformed housing finance system. Read a copy of Michael Barr's speech here.

NYU's Furman Center and IESP Receive MacArthur Foundation Housing Matters Grant

February 7, 2011: NYU's Furman Center and the Institute for Education and Social Policy \(IESP\) received one of nine grants provided through the MacArthur Foundation's $25 million initiative, How Housing Matters to Families and Communities. NYU's Furman Center and IESP, along with researchers from the University of Connecticut, the Institute for Policy Research at Northwestern University, and the School of Public and Environmental Affairs at Indiana University, received an $800,000 award to research the impact of housing instability on school performance in New York City, San Diego and Fresno counties in California and Pinellas County in Florida.

New Publications

How do New York City's Recent Rezonings Align with its Goals for Park Accessibility?

Simon McDonnell, Josiah Madar, and Vicki Been
Cities and the Environment

This paper examines New York City's recent rezonings and finds only a modest increase in citywide residential capacity, and that increases were disproportionately concentrated in areas further from parks.

Minimum Parking Requirements and Housing Affordability in New York City

Simon McDonnell, Josiah Madar, and Vicki Been
Housing Policy Debate

This study examines whether requirements for residential developers to provide minimum off-site parking spaces actually increase housing costs by creating excess parking and reducing the number of units developers could otherwise fit in a given lot.

The Evolving Crisis in Context: Recent Developments for Tenants in the Foreclosure Crisis

Josiah Madar and Allegra Glashausser

Forging a New Housing Policy: Opportunity in the Wake of Crisis

This chapter, published by The National Center for Suburban Studies at Hofstra University, assesses the extent and scale of the challenges facing renters as a result of the foreclosure crisis. It also gauges the efficacy of federal action and GSE policy changes designed to address renters' rights.

Decoding the foreclosure crisis: Causes, responses and consequences

Vicki Been, Sewin Chan, Ingrid Gould Ellen, and Josiah Madar

Journal of Policy Analysis and Management

This Point/Counterpoint essay argues that the collapse of the real estate market and the foreclosure crisis in the wake of “The Great Recession” resulted from risky mortgage underwriting practices. The essay also evaluates various federal policy responses to the crisis and the future of mortgage lending.

The Furman Center for Real Estate and Urban Policy

New York University

139 MacDougal Street, 2nd Floor

New York, NY 10012

Telephone: 212-998-6713

Fax: 212-995-4313

Email: furmancenter@nyu.edu

Website: www.furmancenter.org